FREEDOM OF INFORMATION (SCOTLAND) ACT 2002

I refer to your recent request for information which has been handled in accordance with the Freedom of Information (Scotland) Act 2002.

For ease of reference, your request is replicated below together with the response.

I am seeking information on whether or not Police Scotland has provided assistance to Dundee City Council in forcing entry to their tenant's homes to carry out the Annual Gas Safety check - and, if so, on how many occasions in the years 2017 and 2018.

If this assistance was provided I would appreciate information on the following:

- a description of the process involved
- details of the relevant law, statute or regulation applicable

While I appreciate that you have tried to refine your request, I regret to inform you that I remain unable to provide you with the information you have requested, as it would prove too costly to do so within the context of the fee regulations.

As such, and in terms of Section 16(4) of the Freedom of Information (Scotland) Act 2002 where Section 12(1) of the Act (Excessive Cost of Compliance) has been applied, this represents a refusal notice for the information sought.

By way of explanation, although the time period is shorter, there would still be thousands of incident reports that would require to be individually examined to establish whether they were relevant to your request, as there is no specific incident code which relates to the circumstances outlined.

As such, this is an exercise which I estimate would far exceed the £600 cost limit set out in the Fees Regulations.

Should you require any further assistance please contact Information Management Dundee, quoting the reference number given.

If you are dissatisfied with the way in which Police Scotland has dealt with your request, you are entitled, in the first instance, to request a review of our actions and decisions.
