FREEDOM OF INFORMATION (SCOTLAND) ACT 2002

I refer to your recent request for information which has been handled in accordance with the Freedom of Information (Scotland) Act 2002.

For ease of reference, your request is replicated below together with the response.

In relation to the years - April 2020-March 2021 and April 2021- March 2022. I require the following information,

The number of violence against the person offences recorded by Scotland Police Force involving victims in age categories 65-74 and 75+

A breakdown of the gender of the victims identified above.

A breakdown of the relationship of victim to principal suspect for each victim identified above.

In response to this question, I regret to inform you that I am unable to provide you with the information you have requested, as it would prove too costly to do so within the context of the fee regulations.

As you may be aware the current cost threshold is £600 and I estimate that it would cost well in excess of this amount to process your request.

As such, and in terms of Section 16(4) of the Freedom of Information (Scotland) Act 2002 where Section 12(1) of the Act (Excessive Cost of Compliance) has been applied, this represents a refusal notice for the information sought.

By way of explanation, the crime recording systems used by Police Scotland have no facility whereby the age and gender of the victim, or relationship between the victim and suspect can be easily extracted. It is also not possible to carry out a search of the systems by age of the victim at the time of offence.

As such, case by case assessment of all violent offences would be required to establish whether the victim was aged 65 years and over and other details requested.

This would involve individually examining thousands of crime reports for the time period requested and as such, is an exercise which I estimate would far exceed the cost limit set out in the Fees Regulations.

Should you require any further assistance please contact Information Management Dundee, quoting the reference number given.
