FREEDOM OF INFORMATION (SCOTLAND) ACT 2002

I refer to your recent request for information which has been handled in accordance with the Freedom of Information (Scotland) Act 2002.

For ease of reference, your request is replicated below together with the response.

I would stress that the information provided below has been generated from the Police Scotland Coronavirus Information database.

The application was designed for management information purposes only and relied upon police officers manually recording relevant engagement with members of the public therein.

The functionality was developed over the course of the pandemic and in the earlier periods, whilst all interventions ought to have been recorded, the nature of the intervention - ie that it related to masks/ face coverings - may not have been captured.

Taking into account all of the above, the data may not therefore be wholly accurate but it is what we hold in respect of your request.

Further data that may be of interest is available on our website:

Enforcement and response data - Police Scotland

Throughout the pandemic our officers have engaged with the public in a positive and constructive tone, using the powers afforded to them as a last resort where people defy very clear and sensible advice, designed to protect them from harm.

The '4 Es' approach has been used throughout - which is:

Engage: ask whether an individual is aware of the government request. They'll establish individual circumstances and how quickly someone can comply.

Explain: the risks to public health and to the NHS in line with government guidance.

Encourage: voluntary compliance.

Enforce: if faced with non-compliance. This is a last resort.
