FREEDOM OF INFORMATION (SCOTLAND) ACT 2002

I refer to your recent request for information which has been handled in accordance with the Freedom of Information (Scotland) Act 2002.

For ease of reference, your request is replicated below together with the response.

- 1. Over the last 12 months (up until October 2022) can you please confirm the recorded number of stolen catalytic converters?
- 2. For the years: 2017, 2018, 2019, 2020, 2021 - can you please confirm the recorded number of stolen catalytic converters reported?
- 3. For the year 2022 (up until October 2022) can you please confirm the recorded number of stolen catalytic converters reported?

In response to these questions, I regret to inform you that I am unable to provide you with the information you have requested, as it would prove too costly to do so within the context of the fee regulations.

As you may be aware the current cost threshold is £600 and I estimate that it would cost well in excess of this amount to process your request.

As such, and in terms of Section 16(4) of the Freedom of Information (Scotland) Act 2002 where Section 12(1) of the Act (Excessive Cost of Compliance) has been applied, this represents a refusal notice for the information sought.

By way of explanation, the crime recording systems used by Police Scotland have no facility whereby the type of property stolen can be easily extracted.

The only way to establish whether the property stolen was a catalytic converter, would be to individually examine all Theft offences for the time period requested.

As illustrated by our published statistics, this would involve case by case assessment of a vast number of crime reports - an exercise which I estimate would far exceed the cost limit set out in the Fees Regulations.

Should you require any further assistance please contact Information Management Dundee, quoting the reference number given.

If you are dissatisfied with the way in which Police Scotland has dealt with your request, you are entitled, in the first instance, to request a review of our actions and decisions.
