FREEDOM OF INFORMATION (SCOTLAND) ACT 2002

I refer to your recent request for information which has been handled in accordance with the Freedom of Information (Scotland) Act 2002.

For ease of reference, your request is replicated below together with the response.

please could you send me a breakdown of reported animal thefts for each of the last five years broken down by species?

Having considered your request in terms of the Act, I regret to inform you that I am unable to provide you with the information you have requested, as it would prove too costly to do so within the context of the fee regulations.

As you may be aware the current cost threshold is £600 and I estimate that it would cost well in excess of this amount to process your request.

As such, and in terms of Section 16(4) of the Freedom of Information (Scotland) Act 2002 where Section 12(1) of the Act (Excessive Cost of Compliance) has been applied, this represents a refusal notice for the information sought.

By way of explanation, the only way to provide an accurate response to your request would be to manually examine each and every crime report in relation to theft to establish the details of what was stolen. To illustrate, the most recent published figures show that for the 2020/21 year, there were 22,306 recorded crimes of Theft. Unfortunately, the only way to access the data in your request is via each individual crime report. As such this is an exercise which would far exceed the cost limit set out in the Fees Regulations.
