FREEDOM OF INFORMATION (SCOTLAND) ACT 2002

I refer to your recent request for information which has been handled in accordance with the Freedom of Information (Scotland) Act 2002.

For ease of reference, your request is replicated below together with the response.

- I would like to know the numbers of reported incidents of postage theft in your police force, separated by year.
- I would like this data for the last three calendar years – 2019, 2020 and 2021 – and, if possible, I would also like this data for Quarter 1 of 2022 (January – March).
- If possible, could the data please be broken down by the postcode area in which it occurred.

Having considered your request in terms of the Act, I regret to inform you that I am unable to provide you with the information you have requested, as it would prove too costly to do so within the context of the fee regulations.

As you may be aware the current cost threshold is £600 and I estimate that it would cost well in excess of this amount to process your request.

As such, and in terms of Section 16(4) of the Freedom of Information (Scotland) Act 2002 where Section 12(1) of the Act (Excessive Cost of Compliance) has been applied, this represents a refusal notice for the information sought.

By way of explanation, Police Scotland record crimes using the Scottish Government Justice Department crime classification codes. With regard to your request, offences such as these would be classed as theft. Therefore the only way to provide an accurate response to your request would be to manually examine each and every crime report of theft since 2019 to establish the circumstances. To illustrate, the most recent published figures show that for the 2020/21 year, there were 18, 904 recorded crimes of theft. As such this is an exercise which would far exceed the cost limit set out in the Fees Regulations.
