FREEDOM OF INFORMATION (SCOTLAND) ACT 2002

I refer to your recent request for information which has been handled in accordance with the Freedom of Information (Scotland) Act 2002.

For ease of reference, your request is replicated below together with the response.

- 1. The number of fixed-penalty notices given to drivers for using a hand-held mobile phone while driving, broken by each of the last five years.
- 2. Please could you also specify the number of incidents which resulted in a criminal prosecution for each of these years.

Having considered your request in terms of the above Act, I regret to inform you that I am unable to provide you with the information you have requested, as it would prove too costly to do so within the context of the fee regulations.

As you may be aware the current cost threshold is £600 and I estimate that it would cost well in excess of this amount to process your request.

As such, and in terms of Section 16(4) of the Freedom of Information (Scotland) Act 2002 where Section 12(1) of the Act (Excessive Cost of Compliance) has been applied, this represents a refusal notice for the information sought.

By way of explanation, the crime recorded systems used by Police Scotland have no facility whereby a search can be carried out of detected crimes based on disposal type.

As such, case by case assessment of all mobile phone offences would have to be carried out to establish the outcome and whether it was relevant to your request. This is an exercise which I estimate would far exceed the cost limit set out in the Fees Regulations.

To be of some assistance, general statistics are publicly available on the Police Scotland website, within 'Group 7' offences:-
