FREEDOM OF INFORMATION (SCOTLAND) ACT 2002

I refer to your recent request for information which has been handled in accordance with the Freedom of Information (Scotland) Act 2002.

For ease of reference, your request is replicated below together with the response.

I'm contacting you to ask for information on all reported crimes committed by, or against, persons of 18 years or under, in Ellon (Aberdeenshire), over a span of 5 years. I'd like to emphasise that I'm looking for anything that has been reported to the police, even if it didn't end up with a charge.

Having considered your request in terms of the Act, I regret to inform you that I am unable to provide you with the information you have requested, as it would prove too costly to do so within the context of the fee regulations.

As you may be aware the current cost threshold is £600 and I estimate that it would cost well in excess of this amount to process your request.

As such, and in terms of Section 16(4) of the Freedom of Information (Scotland) Act 2002 where Section 12(1) of the Act (Excessive Cost of Compliance) has been applied, this represents a refusal notice for the information sought.

By way of explanation, the only way to provide an accurate response to your request would be to examine each and every crime report for the Ellon area for the past 5 years to establish the age of the offender at the time the offence was committed. To illustrate in the financial year 2018/19 there are over 400 offences recorded for the Ellon and District area. Therefore given the numbers involved this is an exercise which would far exceed the cost limit set out in the Fees Regulations.
